To "Candace E. Enright Anderson,"

I know how much you like your name and I didn't want you to ever forget it.

Just remember all of the times we've had together. Most of them are pretty hard to forget. Boy, I'm even surprised I'm still living after all I went through that one day in Home Ec. my abric. H.A. I've really had a blast doing everything and I don't think we've ever been mad. At times you probably felt like killing me but I'm still living.

Stay the way you are and never change cause if you do you might not be as much fun.

Hope everything goes your way in your future years. Lots of luck!

Candy - Best of luck & one of the sweetest girls in our class. I hope we have a lot of fun next year in school!

To a wonderful friend, Candy, remember all the fun we had in this past year! I'll never forget that Haunted House! Candy, I'll never forget the time at Connie's party what Wanda and I did! (I'm surprised we didn't kill ourselves.) We'll never forget that time you bent my bicycle. I still can't forget either. (I still haven't returned the bike cause I have to straighten it out. I'll, Candy, Always keep up your wonderful personality. Good Luck Always!

Adams Central Community Schools

Monroe, Indiana

Volume 16

Students moved in from all directions to attend Adams Central Community School in Monroe, Indiana. Central shot forward in education and recreation with its new kindergarten and the new tennis courts. Between classes Centralites hurriedly exchanged snatches of "Wasn't the history test awful?" or "Meet me in the gym at noon." Pupils rushed to the modern cafeteria for a hot lunch, and then chatted with their "atomic age" contemporaries or crammed in some studying in the library.

In the brisk world of the presidential election, civil rights' riots, and "hoots," Centralites hustled all the time. As they jetted toward graduation, 1964-65 seemed to be THE SHORTEST YEAR.

Cary Gerber displays his ability to give an oil transfusion.

Summer vacation proves to be just as busy and just as hurried as the school year. Band trips, swimming, baseball games, the 4-H fair and Monroe Community Days, summer jobs, church camp, and institutes all unite in preventing students from getting "homesick" for Adams Central during the summer months. Then all too soon September rolls around, and it's back to school--time to meet old friends and time to get in the old grind once again. Yes, Centralites are always on the move; there is no time to stop.

Preparation for Blast-off in September

Can we trust Flo Brandt with all our money?--Why not??

"For better or for worse"--Rita Mattax prompts Sharon Bercot as she applies Sharon's make-up.

Here's my contact--underneath this piece of bubblegum. (Spanish students dive for goodies from the pinata.)

Tight Schedules Keep Centralites Busy

Centralites hustled all year. Besides going to school for "book-larnin'," they took part in many extra-curricular activities in order to become well-rounded citizens. If there was no special thing to do one night, one could always call up a gang of his friends and have a party or go driving about town. During the shortest year their springs were always wound tight.

Maris Moe and her Dad prove that three legs are better than two.

Jim Ehrsam possesses an unusual talent--the ability to play a trumpet while lying down.

No, this isn't Benedict Arnold. Glenn Marckel is just strangling Ed Daniels.

The floor show holds the attention of the players and the coaching staff.

Margaret Rowdon chants that it's been "a hard day's night."

Linda Genth models a new hat.

Rex Funk and Marie Kaehr, Melvin Burkhart and Margaret Rowdon, crown bearer Neil Martin and flower girl Joni Nussbaum, Queen Sharon Bercot and King Tony Ehram, Steve Kaehr and Rita Mattax, Art Ringger and Gloria Engle.

Centralites Wait in Breathless Suspense

On January 29, the A.C.-Monroeville game was highlighted with the crowning of Cen-Trail's queen and king. A spotlight followed each of the five couples as they proceeded across the white carpet to the stage which was beautifully decorated with red carnations. Red overhead lights added to the attraction. Queen Sharon and King Tony were chosen by a vote of the student body. This activity was sponsored by the year-book staff.

Spice to Routine

Special events add variety to the routine of classes and homework. Ball-games, math problems, parties, term-papers, banquets, and leaf collections made 1965 seem to be the shortest year of all.

Kathy Ehram and Ron Kipfer share a hot dog at the Dutch Mill.

Let a woman once give you a task and you are hers.

Academics was the most important part of our school life. It prepared us for our life's vocation. Six hours a day were spent gaining new knowledge of the many subjects offered at Central. We learned such things as how to make end tables for future living rooms, how to sew our own clothes, and how to raise a better bushel of corn.

Our mind is a treasure chest, and whether we leave Central with a full or empty chest is entirely up to us. We are provided with qualified teachers and many varied subjects. The rest is up to each and every student. What did you do with your treasure chest during THE SHORTEST YEAR?

Academics

Don't be asleep on voting procedures as Etta Schwartz is, but be alert like Arlene Dennison and Ted Nussbaum.

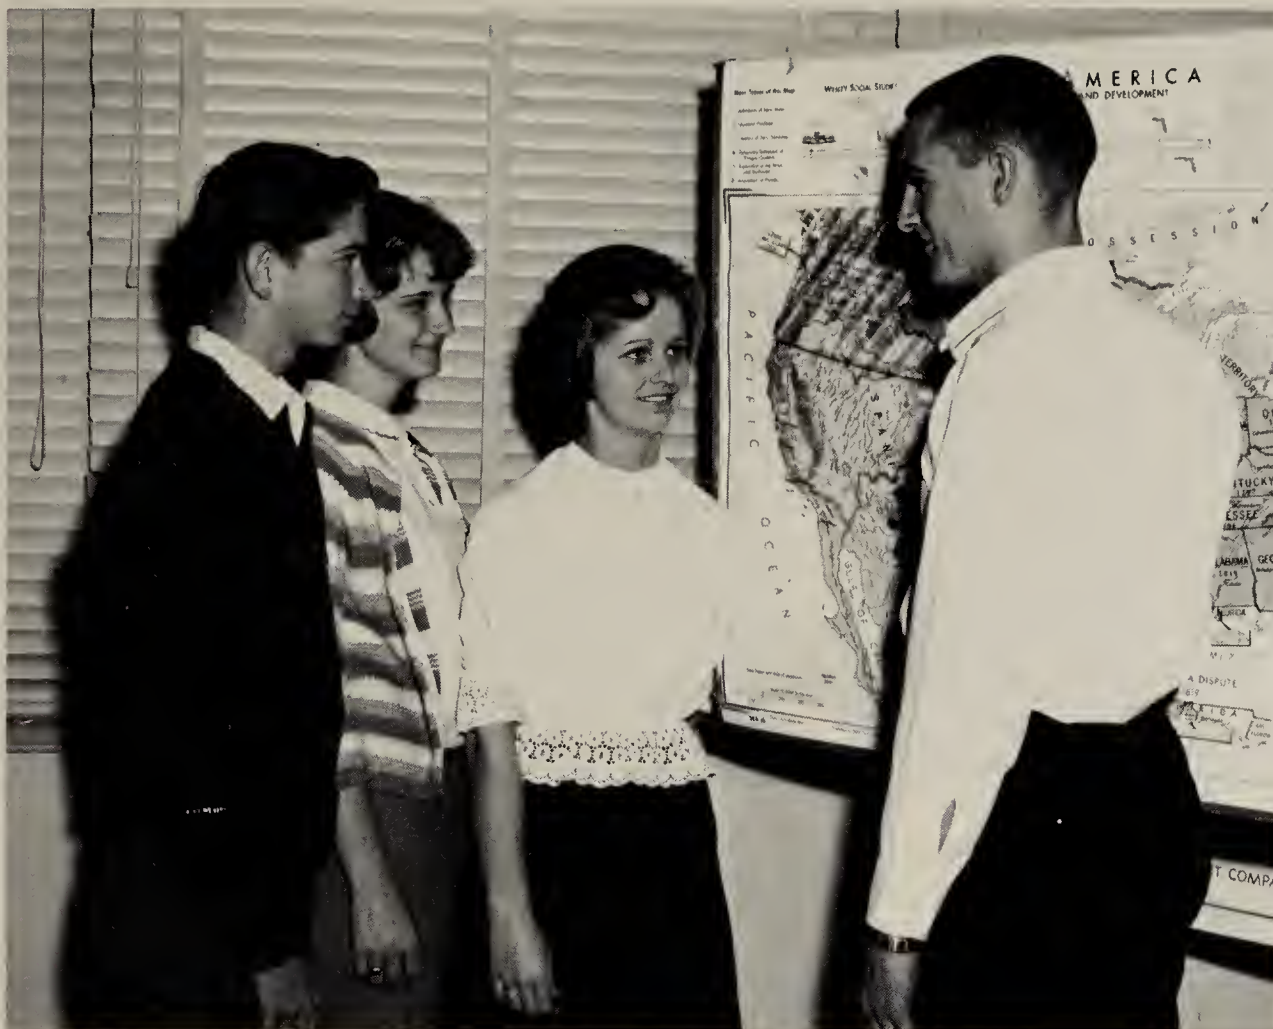

Social Studies Pupils Follow Election;

Dale Mankey, Connie Everett, Steve Minnich, and Rita Mattax pretend to discuss sociology while exchanging gossip.

No, the picture's not wrong--these history pupils are really studying.

Brian Schwartz points out to Jim Ehram, Arlene Borno, and Marcene Gerber his latest discovery, the location of the U.S.

Psychology Class Studies Crowd Behavior

Sophomores, juniors, and seniors were right up to date in history as they campaigned for the coming presidential election and voted for the candidates of their choice. They learned by reading current event maps, studying charts, and watching films.

The psychology classes were also up to date as they study inkblots, degrees of intelligence, and Freud's studies of mental illness.

The inkblots Mr. Engle holds prove it--the men in white coats will soon be here to get Rex Funk and Dave Arnold.

Don't be a square. Join the "round-table" discussion in speech class.

Linda Row knows in her heart that Mr. Shoup is right.

English, Speech, and Foreign Languages

In speech class, Mrs. Munson used many methods to help her students become better speakers. They had debates, listened to good speakers on records, learned how to gesture properly by practicing in front of their class, and for the first time, they introduced the speakers at our assembly programs.

Mrs. Munson awakens Ron Smith to an interesting article in the "Digest."

Mike Ross demonstrates the correct way to hold a beagle by its ears.

Mrs. Stucky explains her point to Judy Ringer (r.) and Pauline Ripley (l.) her Latinae Scholae.

Get the message, everybody?

Combine Verbs, Voice, and Vocabulary

Subjects, predicates, direct objects, clauses, and objective complements, themes, book reports, and term papers confront English students. Mrs. Munson, Mr. Shoup, and Mrs. Whittenburg taught freshman through seniors syntax, good writing procedures, and spelling. During the second semester freshmen read David Copperfield, sophomores discover Shakespeare as they memorize parts of Julius Caesar, Juniors study the heritage of America by reading great literature, and seniors struggle to understand Macbeth.

Latin and Spanish pupils learn another language by conjugating verbs, declining nouns, and translating.

Miss Williamson taught Spanish I, II, and III pupils some Spanish customs. Mrs. Stucky's Latin I and II classes gave reports on Roman gods and goddesses.

Margaret Rowdon and Melvin Burkhart can prove that this tape can do what Scotch tape can't do.

Leaf Collections, Lab Work and Graphs

Leafing through their collections, Brian Zurcher, Larry Rich, and Marlene Stucky compare their biology notebooks.

It was necessary for all freshmen to take biology. Each individual searched for various kinds of insects and leaves for their collections. Dissecting fish and frogs aided the class to understand facts about animals and plants. Pupils taking chemistry gained knowledge about chemical elements and solved scientific problems. They experimented in the lab to determine the composition of various compounds. Studying facts about matter and motion in physics helped to enlarge the knowledge of the seniors. Included in this course are the studies of heat, light, sound, mechanics, forces, power, and electricity.

With Mr. Allspaw's supervision, Kathy McKean and Kent Whitacre avoid the danger of scorched chemicals by using a small flame.

Accent Science, Math

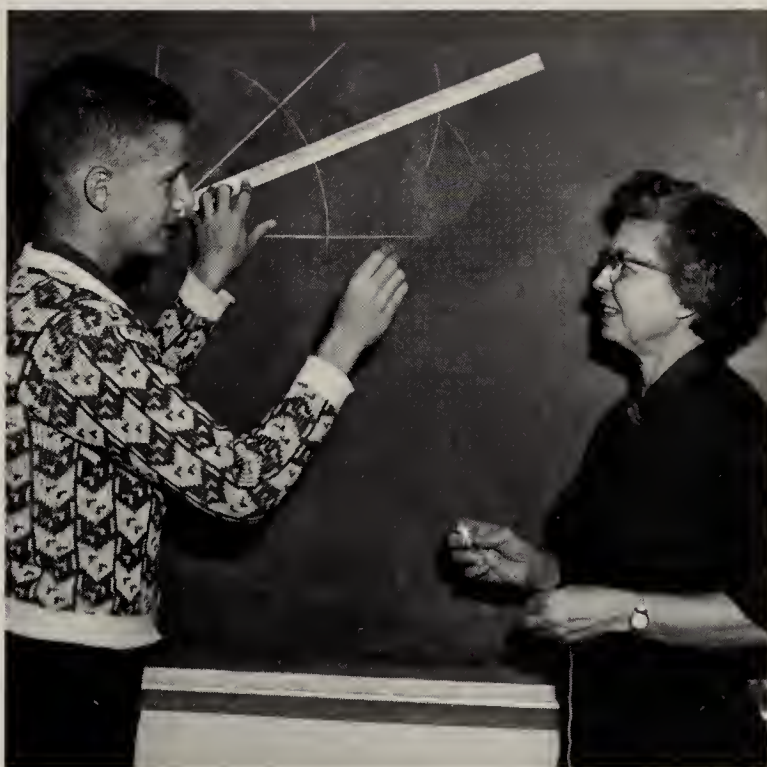

The increase in the enrollment of the mathematics classes this year called for the establishment of new Algebra I, Algebra II, and trigonometry classes. The two Algebra I classes were taught by Mr. Allspaw while the general math classes were handled by Mr. Habegger and Mr. Adler. Miss Beavers kept busy with two Algebra II sections, two plane geometry classes, and one trig class. Geometry pupils learned the fundamentals of circles and triangles while algebra students studied equations. Adams Central's math teachers were very experienced with their subject, having a total of seventy-five years of service.

The "plot thickens" for Warren Macy as Miss Beavers explains the Mystery of the hyperbole to him.

Ron Kipfer and Linda Rich find that it takes "team-work" to work some Chemistry problems.

"X marks the spot" where Dennis Harvey bisects the angle Miss Beavers had drawn.

Health, Safety,

Look! Up in the air! "It's a bird, it's a plane, it's . . . a basketball!" P.E. Jets fly high to get the tip.

As Bill Stucky punches his finger into the maniquin's eye, Jim Gilbert stops the blood circulation in its arm.

This is the way Adams Central's girls keep their figures.

Mrs. Soldner and Mr. Zurcher taught seventh-through-tenth grade pupils the fundamentals of physical education. Sophomore health classes studied diets, mental health, and personality. Driver education prepared pupils to drive during all weather and traffic conditions. To avoid danger, Mr. Bryan instructed this course with one foot near the dual controls.

Mr. Bryan and Danny Green show Harriet Bercot and Barbara Garwood the radiator and its cap.

Art, and Music Develop Minds and Bodies

OK class, most of you sing in the bass clef, but let's learn the treble clef too.

Cheryl Isch seriously studies the music to the latest Beatle hit.

Pupils from kindergarten to eighth grade marched, sang, and listened to records in music classes. Mrs. Fuhrman and Mr. Henkel taught these phases of music appreciation.

Mr. Kirchoffer taught art to all twelve grades. Art was a weekly event for elementary pupils, a nine weeks' course for junior high, and an elective in high school. Pupils experimented with design, drawing, and crafts.

After mowing the yard, raking the leaves, and trimming the hedge, three eighth grade girls begin their art project.

Mr. Bryan watches as Colleen Ringger and Barry Isch use the adding machine to find their mistake.

Again this year we had a good selection of business courses here at Adams Central. Mrs. Archbold, Mr. Habegger, and Mr. Bryan were the teachers of these courses. Mrs. Archbold taught Typing I and II classes, a Shorthand, and Secretarial Training. Mr. Habegger also taught typing, and Mr. Bryan taught Bookkeeping and a new course this year, Business Law.

The Home Economics classes taught by Mrs. Nielsen, have been busy this year covering a wide variety of subjects, besides cooking and sewing. Family life, marriage, home management, and child care were other subjects they studied.

Vocational and Business Courses Provide

Judy Funk and Bonnie Bowers wait with baited breath to taste the results of their domestic efforts.

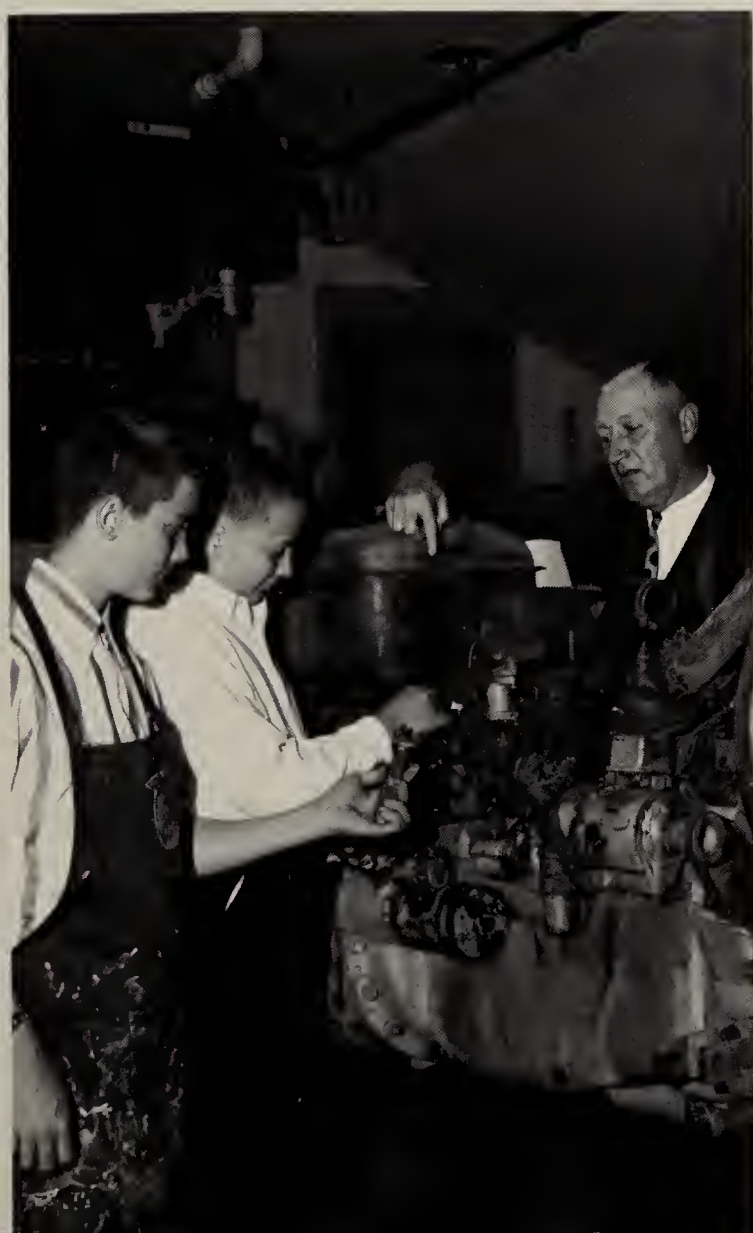

Mary Lantz doesn't trust her own cooking, so she uses Sally Leyse as her guinea pig.

Tom Bebout and Dave Arnold find their "racing goggles" useful when welding in shop.

Practical Training for Future Careers

Max Royer lends a helping wrench to Duane Scheiderer while Mr. Watson tells them how to correct the tractor's malfunction.

One practical training course at Adams Central was Industrial Arts. This course was taught by Mr. Collier. There were many projects included in this course, such as mechanical and machine drawings, novice and advanced wood-working, and the working with metals. The big project for the seniors was to draw a complete set of house plans. Mr. Watson taught vocational agriculture to pupils in grades eight through twelve. The freshmen study crops, basic problems with livestock, and work in the farm shop. Sophomores study livestock, dairy diseases, and practical farm sheep problems. The study of soils, fertilizers, dairy and livestock management confronts juniors and seniors. They also study advance farm machinery repair in farm shop.

Organizations helped to round out a student's life. They drew students together for fun, enjoyments, and education. They gave Centralites a chance to learn to cooperate with others on many different committees and, in some cases, to take a hand in leadership. There were many top organizations to which the students belonged. One was the high school band which won many honors last marching season. Another top organization was the Sunshine Society, whose motto is "Others." Other organizations included the Rifle Club, National Honor Society, the Dramatics Club, and Pep Club. These were just a few of the organizations where common interests were shared during THE SHORTEST YEAR.

Blasts of trumpets, the mellow sound of clarinets, the warbling of the flutes, and the bellow of the sousaphones--all these blend to produce a melodious A.C. band. Adams Central claims four bands--the beginner, intermediate, junior, and senior bands, all of which were very active throughout the year. The senior band is proud of their first place awards which they received on several marching occasions. Two concerts, contests, and marching routines at home ball games complete the band calendar. Award pins were distributed at intervals throughout the year to reward senior band members for their efforts in the making of a better band.

Melody drifting throughout the halls first period was an indication that rehearsal for the high school choir was in session. Under the direction of Mr. Henkel and Mr. Gerig, the boys and girls were divided into two groups for a portion of the course. Combined selections were also featured at the concerts given by the choir. Presenting a choir concert in February and joining the band in the annual spring concert kept the choir occupied. The group also performed at the Easter sunrise service and at Baccalaureate. Individual soloists and ensembles displayed their talent at NISBOVA this winter.

"El Círculo Español" is an active club to which only those students who have had more than one year of Spanish are eligible. They lived up to their motto, "Adelante, Siempre Adelante" (Forward, Always Forward), as their monthly meetings were highlighted by Spanish conversation and games. Every Christmas, the Spanish students look forward to the Gran Fiesta in which one of the main events is the breaking of the "piñatas."

The purpose of the Spanish Club is to help create a better relationship between the United States and Central and South America, by learning more about them.

Working late into the wee hours of the morning, the annual staff struggled against time to meet each deadline. Jam sessions at the editor's home were spent thinking of clever and funny cutlines for the ads and the informal pictures.

Fitting headlines to the 39-letter space, writing copy, last minute typing, and putting the finished 3-R forms into the envelope preceded the rush to the postoffice and the elation of knowing there's one less deadline to meet.

Editor Carmi Steffen has kept her staff going at a lively tempo this year. The JET JOURNAL is a bi-weekly paper which contains information on all aspects of school life. After collecting articles, typing them on uniformly spaced lines, retyping them on a stencil, and duplicating the pages on the mimeograph, the JET JOURNAL finally came into being. Carmi Steffen and Becky Soldner accumulated many new ideas at a two-week Journalism Institute at Indiana University last summer. Extra efforts were put forth on the gigantic sectional and senior issues. An award banquet at the Dutch Mill last spring compensated the staff members for their hard work on the 1964-65 JET JOURNAL.

Youth for Christ's well-planned programs, under the guidance of new club director Wes Christian, have meant much to A.C. teens. Quizzing captained by Connie Everett, talent contest, rallies, singspirations, Holiday Teen, Campspiration, plus a "teen-to-teen" witness have made YFC a voice of Christian youth in action.

The Sunshine Society's purpose is cheery helpfulness. The efforts put forth by the girls and their sponsors, Mrs. Stucky and Mrs. Nielsen, made it possible for them to adopt a Chinese orphan, to present a program at the Adams County Home, to select Ideal Ladies, and to spend a pleasant evening at the Sweetheart banquet.

The eleven senior members of the National Honor Society tagged thirteen new members into the society last year.

Besides striving to maintain a B average, the NHS students also operated the candy shop, kept the bulletin board in the foyer up to date, and collected used glasses to give to needy people. In the spring the society sponsored the second annual party for all the high school students who had had high grades throughout the entire school year. In this way the National Honor Society encouraged students to develop character, service, leadership, and scholarship in order to become members of the society.

Make-up, Lights Change Amateurs into Stars

Play practice (almost every night after school) began the process of changing student amateurs into accomplished actors. Rehearsals progressed from a classroom to the bare stage to the dress rehearsal. When the production night came the stage frightened "actors" were weak with anxiety. But with the help of make-up, stage props, bright lights, an expectant audience, and Mr. Allspaw's cue, the memorized lines came to life. Curtain call before a pleased audience climaxed the weeks of hard work. Adams Central's Dramatics Club presented a Christmas play, "Grandpa Hangs the Holly, and also a play in the spring.

In its fifteenth year at Adams Central, the FFA has sixty active members. At its monthly meetings the members discussed new farming techniques, girls, and machinery. All members of the chapter competed in the District VI pest contest. The boys were out for the tails of rats, muskrats, mice, foxes, ground-hogs, and weasels, and for the heads of sparrows, starlings, and blackbirds. Other activities included crop, soil, poultry, livestock, dairy, and vegetable judging contest. Distributing 25 baskets of food to needy families for Thanksgiving was one of the highlights of the year.

The pep band swung out last year with some of the favorite popular numbers, "Java," "Alley Cat," and "Swingin' Safari." Responding to the beat of Mr. Gerig's baton, the band provided pep and enthusiasm at each home ballgame. After the lively school songs, the band then played the national anthem.

Under the capable direction of Mr. Kirchhofer, the art club met after school each Monday. Anyone interested in art was eligible to join this club. Individual projects were worked on by the members. A field trip last spring highlighted the year's activities for the art club.

Centralites participated in a variety of sports throughout the seasons. Summer and early fall was the baseball season. Following this, athletes tested their endurance with cross country. Winter brought with it the primary sport, basketball, or as it is often called, "Hoosier Hysteria." As soon as the final game was played, the athletes started running in preparation for the spring track competition.

Adams Central's students also participated in an inter-scholastic sports program. Included in this were intramurals, volleyball, and table tennis.

Central's athletes used Hustle, Balance, Sacrifice, Pride, Sportsmanship, and Scholarship as its guideline to success during THE SHORTEST YEAR.

Golf was a new sport at Central this past year. It provided not only good exercise but also stressed courtesy, honesty, and good sportsmanship by the very manner in which the game is played.

Under the direction of Mr. Strahm several boys learned proper driving and putting techniques. Although the team didn't win many matches this year, they hope to improve with experience.

Adams Central's baseball team finished the year with a record of four wins and three losses. Losing the services of Tony Chrsam after the first game through injury, the Jets were carried through the season led by the pitching of Rex Funk and Steve Smith. The batting Championship was awarded to Rex Funk, who finished the season with a batting average of .481.

The Cross Country team, led by Coach Ed Bryan started off on the right foot by running up a perfect score of 15 against Berne. To do this, a team must place their top five runners in the first five places. In six meets the Jet Harriers defeated 14 teams while bowing to only 1. In the EWVC meet they were defeated by Geneva by 17 points. Then in the county meet, the Jets almost topped the Cardinals, placing only one position behind, losing a 50-51 heartbreaker.

Adams Central's Jets were backed through victory and defeat by the wild enthusiasm of the girls in the pep club. These ardent fans looked great in their new red-and-white jerseys and dark skirts. The Jets' fans' spirits' soared as they rooted their classmates, boy-friends, and brothers on to beat the foe. Central's cheerleaders inspired the pep club with new yells, acrobatic stunts, and routines which they learned at the Smith-Walbridge Cheerleading Camp. With the gay pom-poms and the new flashy motions to the school song, the Centralites were proud to be loyal Jet fans.

Hustling Jets Sacrifice Pride for Balance

The Flying Jets finished the 1964-65 campaign with a sterling 15-5 record. The key to the Jets' success has been Hustle, Balance, Sacrifice, and Pride. Mr. Zurcher stressed that success was not based on the number of games won or lost, but rather on the basis of what each individual did in comparison with others when all factors of the opponent were taken into consideration.

The coach felt that it was just as important for the boys to be ready mentally for a game as well as physically. As George Moriarty once said, "Giving all, it seems to me, is not so far from victory." Therefore, in the final analysis, only the individual himself can correctly determine his success. You may be able to fool others, but you can never fool yourself.

Jets Thought They Could and Won Sectional

Adopting the slogan, "If you think you can, you can," the Jets defeated Woodlan, Berne, and Decatur and won their second sectional championship in two years. Fine shooting and an excellent team effort proved too much for their opponents. There were many thrills en route to the final victory. The Jets disposed of Woodlan easier than expected, but Berne gave them all they could handle for two periods. But experience took over and Berne fell by the wayside. A very determined Yellow Jacket squad really made the Jets fight for their life, but the Jets never cracked under pressure once. Hats off to a great team!

Cindermen, B-Team Display Future Promise

Adams Central's cindermen gained valuable experience and set new records last year. The bulk of the scoring was done mostly by underclassmen, which makes the spring team look promising. Senior Don Egley set a school pole vault record of 11'10". P. Esch, R. Schnepf, K. Habegger, and A. Birch also set a school mile relay record of 3:50.5.

The Junior Varsity has shown Adams Central's fans some very excellent ball-playing this past year. These boys, under Coach Bryan, will make welcome additions to our varsity in the next two years. Due to balanced scoring, good rebounding, and alert plays, the reserve team won its tourney and compiled a 16-4 record in the regular season.

Freshman, Junior High Teams Gain Experience

The Freshman team, under Coach Habegger has improved immensely through the season. The most important trait is their tremendous desire to play basketball. These boys are the Jets future varsity. Mr. Habegger had done a great job with this team. They compiled a record of 5-11 for the year.

The Junior High team, coached by Mr. Engle, competed against neighboring schools, learning major basketball fundamentals and team spirit. Good habits learned early are not forgotten. This year the Junior High teams finished with a combined record of 15-7.

JR. HIGH BASKETBALL: CHEERLEADERS: S. Leyse, C. Nussbaum, B. Brunner, K. Mutschler. SECOND ROW: J. Burkhead, S. Tullis, D. Fisher, J. Double, E. Geyer, J. McClain, K. Rich, A. Stoller. THIRD ROW: G. Laughing, crying, dreaming, hoping, working; our friends were always there, sharing with us these common experiences. What would a basketball game have been like without friends to cheer with or to share our disappointment? Of course, a trio or quartet wasn't complete without friends. The class parties, hayrides, and skating parties all called for friends. Friends had their place in our daily activities; listening to the latest gossip in the gym at noon, playing in intramurals, and helping a fellow student with an algebra problem. And girls, don't forget that one "special" friend that you took to the Sunshine Banquet. Yes, students from kindergarten to high school shared friends during THE SHORTEST YEAR.

JANITORS: Mr. Riley, Mr. Landis, Mr. Rupert.

JANITOR: Mr. Suman.

Responsible People Serve Centralites Well

Many different people help to keep Adams Central running smoothly all the time. Throughout the day the janitors were always handy when we needed a lightbulb, a broom, or a ball off of the roof. During the year of '65 the cooks prepared 7831 pies and 11,253 doughnuts to satisfy hungry Centralites at noon.

Every morning and evening the bus drivers and patrol boys were right on the job watching out for the safety of each student.

This past year the student council sponsored a dress-up day which was very effective, but ended with aching feet for the girls and choked Adams' apples for the boys.

Seniors Finish Their High School Career

CLASS OFFICERS: SEATED--M. Moeschberger, sec.; S. Kaehr, pres.; Miss Williamson, sponsor; STANDING--B. Isch v. pres.; Mr. Allspaw, sponsor, R. Steury, treas.; Mr. Shoup, sponsor.

"Finished?" asked Verna Adler.

"Just one more pin," replied Judy Ringger.

Jim Rash catches some extra shut-eye in study hall.

The Senior Class of 1965 began their high school careers in September 1961 with 81 members. Because of school reorganization the graduating class had 88 members.

Funds for the class trip to Washington were raised by selling magazines, cards, and concessions, collecting class dues, and sponsoring skating parties.

During their last year at Central, seniors studied hard, made college and job plans, and strengthened friendships.

Advertising plays a most important role in present day living. It would be virtually impossible to spend a single day without coming in contact with an advertisement of some sort. You see ads on billboards, in store windows, in magazines, in newspapers, on television, and in the yearbook. Much is gained from advertising. If you have something to sell, wish to buy an item, or have information to impart, advertise. Many friends of Cen-Trails have placed their ads in our publication. To each and all, we say "Thank You" and hope that your ad in this book will reap you a good reward. To the consumers, we hope that you have bought from these advertisers during THE SHORTEST YEAR.

To Everyone,

The editor wishes to thank all those people who have helped to make this yearbook possible. The tolerance and co-operation of the advisor, the teachers, the administration, the parents, the worknight buddies, the photographers, the last minute recruits for typing and cutlines, and the postmistress have been greatly appreciated.

Sincerely,
Maris Moeschberger
